CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1919

TWO CENTS

BOARD OF TRADE WILL TRY TO HAVE CAR FARE ZONE CHANGED

Claim Present System Is Discrimination Against Business of Town

REPORT ON GEARLESS MOTOR

A regular meeting of the Charleroi Board of Trade was held last evening with a fair representation of the membership present. Dinner was served at the Hotel Wilbur, after which the members adjourned to the municipal building, where the business session was held in the public meeting room.

After disposing of some routine matters, President Schafer reported that he had been informed by County Commissioner John O. Watson that State Highway Commissioner Sadler was expected to be in this county again some time next week, when the road leading from Speers to Coal Center would be gone over, with a possibility of some immediate action taken toward getting affairs in shape to improve it.

The question of local street railway fare zones was then taken up and discussed at some length. At present the fare zone in the borough extends from the Monessen bridge to First street or Maple Creek. Passengers boarding cars for Speers and other points south are required to pay a 5-cent fare to First street and then additional 5-cent fares according to the distance they travel. In the opinion of the Board members this is a discrimination against Charleroi, and many were of the opinion that if the matter were properly presented to the receivers some change would be made, possibly making Fifth St. the end of the zone. It was finally decided to put the matter in the hands of a special committee, and Harry W. Scott and John B. Schafer will interview the receivers on the subject.

The question of closing the stores on Thursday, the 21st, the day of the celebration, was also discussed and a motion prevailed requesting all merchants to close on that day. This action, however, not to refer to drug stores, restaurants, or confectionary stores.

Roy I. Carson, a member of the committee to visit the Gearless Motor Company plant in Pittsburgh, made a report. He said the company appeared to have a good motor, but that the terms they asked to locate in Charleroi were so unreasonable that he did not think it worth while to consider them. The company claimed to have splendid offers from other towns, and apparently were indifferent to any terms except those which they had offered. This company had a representative in Charleroi some time ago looking over the situation, and appeared at that time very anxious to locate here. However, the report of the special committee will likely result in any further effort to bring the company here being dropped.

This concluded the business of the evening and the meeting adjourned, place.

FLOURISHED A GUN; PLACED UNDER ARREST

Frank Clemens, who was raising a disturbance on Washington avenue last night, was arrested by Officers Corey and Walsh and placed in the lockup. Clemens had a double barreled shotgun which he was flourishing in a dangerous manner and threatened to shoot the officers. He also raised quite a disturbance at 617 Washington avenue and broke a number of windows. When placed in custody Clemens claimed to have been doped. A charge of disorderly conduct was placed against him.

INSPECTION POSTPONED

Dr. Martin and Party Were to Have Been Here Friday

PLANS WERE SUDDENLY CHANGED

The expected visit of Dr. Edw. Martin of the State Health Department, together with Hon. W. J. McCaig, chairman of the House Appropriations committee, to Charleroi, to see a site for the proposed new hospital, has been indefinitely postponed.

Dr. Martin and party, which would have consisted of himself, Mr. McCaig and Mr. Emerson, the latter chief engineer in the State Health Department, and the county medical inspectors of Washington, Fayette and Westmoreland counties, were to have arrived in Charleroi on Friday, prepared to stay all day and to have visited all of the proposed sites, both in Charleroi, Monessen and Donora. Dr. Martin had assembled a large mass of data concerning conditions in the district in the way of water supply, weather conditions, roads, sewage, and other matters of importance, which would have had a bearing on the selection of a site.

However, events of the past few days has caused the visit to be postponed, and the Charleroi committee is holding a meeting this afternoon to decide if possible upon future plan of action.

Send the children to the Matinees "Daddy Long Legs," eleven cents. Evening prices for all children seven cents. All who have seen this picture claim it to be Mary Pickford's best work. Three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

with the understanding that the Board meet again in September, at which time an election of officers will take place.

Are Urged To Contribute To The Celebration Fund

Acting Chairman Milliken, of the finance committee of the home-coming celebration, wishes to again call the attention of the people of Charleroi to the boxes placed in the three banks and the drug stores in town, in which all are invited to deposit at least one dollar, to help defray the expenses of the celebration in honor of the soldiers to be held next week. So far the returns have not been as large as anticipated, and as the committee has arranged to spend considerable money it will be necessary, in order to carry out the program, to receive subscriptions from every citizen in the district which is included in the scope of the demonstration.

LEGION WILL MEET FRIDAY EVENING

The Charleroi Post No. 22, of the American Legion, will hold a special meeting Friday evening at 8:00 p.m. in the public meeting room of the municipal building. It is desired that all members be present at the meeting and also that all discharged soldiers, sailors and marines who are not yet members will come to the meeting and learn the purpose of the organization, which is open to all men who were in the United States Military or Naval Service.

BOGUS OFFICERS GET EASY MONEY

Tom Novich of Ellsworth, lured from his home by the ruse of four men Tuesday night, who claimed they were policemen and wanted him on a charge of burglary, was taken to a lonely spot on the outskirts of the town and there forced to part with $125 and a gold watch. Novich had recently drawn about $2,000 savings from a bank, expecting to return to his old home in Europe, which is located in what is now known as Jugoslavia. The men who robbed Novich are countrymen of his and were aware that he had taken a large sum of money from the bank. No arrests have yet been made.

William Geho, of North Charleroi, was injured in Monessen on Wednesday when he was knocked off his motorcycle by a machine driven by Fred Felgar, of Monessen. Geho was slightly hurt and his machine damaged. Felgar admitted himself at fault and promised to make good all loss suffered by Geho.

What Caused The Affray Appears to be Shrouded in Mystery

TWO ARRESTED FOR THE CRIME

Joseph Somers, employed at the Hotel Wilbur for the past ten days, was arrested by a Pittsburgh officer Wednesday night and taken to the city on the last car to answer a charge of larceny which had been made against him. When Somers left he told some of the employees that he had to go to the city but that he would return some time today.

FOODSTUFFS BY PARCEL POST

Citizens can order Through P. O. For Three Days Next Week

PURCHASERS TO ACT QUICKLY

Charleroi citizens will be able to buy government foodstuffs at government rates, through the post offices, beginning with Monday next, and continuing for a period of three days. Dr. Smith, acting postmaster, has from the post office department instructions relative to the matter, and any citizen sufficiently interested in making an endeavor to reduce the high cost of living can get all the desired information by calling on the postmaster for details. Price lists will be found posted in the lobbies, any item of which can be ordered by parcel post on the payment of the price of the goods, together with the parcel post rate of postage.

The parcel post limit of weight on these goods is 125 pounds, the postage on which amount would be $1.29, and goods ordered over and above that amount will be charged additional postage accordingly. The post office department instructs the local post master that no orders will be taken after the 20th, so that any of our people contemplating securing any of the many articles which the government is prepared to furnish should make their arrangements at once.

The orders received by the post master will be made up each day and forwarded to the proper authorities and deliveries will no doubt be quite prompt. As the time for receiving orders is limited it is important that those who desire to take advantage of this offer should do so at once. All the details will be furnished upon application to the post office.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Harvey of Lincoln avenue celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Wednesday.

CREDULOUS TREASURE SEEKERS

Among the hopes that 'spring eternal' in the human breast' the confident expectation of some day unearthing a buried treasure seems to be one of the most persistent. Every few months we read of the departure of still another expedition in search of pirates' gold in spite of the innumerable failures that went before. Many kinds of lost treasure are industriously sought, from the contents of ships recently gone down to shallow ocean beds to the imaginary caches of ancient buccaneers. Even at this late date the British government is urged to dig for King John's baggage train, swallowed up in the high tides from the North Sea near Lincoln in the year 1216, a lost treasure believed to be of vast wealth, including King John's jewels, much rich plate, and even the crown of King Alfred together with other ancient British regalia.

But of all the transactions traceable to faith in buried treasure perhaps the most astonishing is reported from New Jersey. Three persons who refused to meet a note given in payment for a farm near Trenton declare that they bought the farm on the owner's assurance that Captain Kidd's spirit appeared to him and solemnly asserted that much of the old pirate's gold was buried on the place. The eager purchasers did not stop to reflect that if the owner believed his own tale he would be in no hurry to sell. Nor did it occur to them that with the whole Atlantic coast within easy reach Captain Kidd would hardly have carted his treasure across the whole width of New Jersey. They gave their note for $5000 then dug until they were tired without finding a single piece of Kidd's pieces of eight, and now they protest. Yet they need not despair. It is possible for a chicken and truck farm, plus hard work, still to realize some measure of their dream of gain.

INDIVIDUALS AND H. C. L.

Perhaps the worst mistake we could make in this period of high prices with its attendant evils, is to lose sight of the obligation of the individual. Efforts to suppress profiteering may have beneficial results, but it would be unfortunate if the present agitation should strengthen the impression that our difficulties are due solely to wicked extortionists and that penitentiary sentences for these offenders will furnish a complete solution.

Even a superficial view of world conditions will show that many other causes aside from profiteering are at work to advance the cost of living. There are the elemental causes, such as the enormous waste of the war, the world-wide decline in production, and the enormous expansion of currency and credit. Now, whatever Congress, or the department of justice or any other agency, here or abroad may seek to do to remedy living conditions their efforts must be largely frustrated unless they have the support and co-operation of the whole people in removing or rectifying the elemental causes.

Until production has been brought back to normal we believe that it is a false and vicious theory to assume that it is perfectly legitimate to live on a scale equivalent to or better than that which prevailed before the war. We are not speaking of those whose income never permitted more than a bare living, but of those who were accustomed to devote a considerable amount of their income to luxuries, whether food, drink, clothing, amusement, or the like. But there is observable everywhere an effort to keep up that scale and frequently to go beyond it. The result is to intensify the scarcity of necessities, to raise the cost of living and to postpone a permanent solution of our problem, if not to endanger the integrity of the nation.

We urge saving in the kitchen so as to permit a fair distribution of food-stuffs; we urge thrift in all purchases, because thrift is one of the surest ways of releasing labor and materials for useful production.—Chicago Tribune.

THREE HUNDRED YEARS OF NATIONALISM

Tracing the history of America from the time of the first settlement at Jamestown in 1619 through the 300 years of growth to the present day, the Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourns, Jr., today gave out the following statement as being the continuous development of Constitutional government in this country. The statement contrasts the record of three centuries with the complete reversal of national policy that now confronts the country.

"On July 30th, 1619, exactly three hundred years ago, the first legislative assembly in the New World was organized. The scene was Jamestown, and the event was the first meeting of the House of Burgesses of Virginia. Thereafter popular government spread throughout the colonies as they were formed by immigrants from the Old World intent upon escaping from the oppressions of Europe. In 1620 the Mayflower compact was drawn up as the government pact for the Plymouth colony in Massachusetts. In 1638 Connecticut adopted the first constitution, which bears a striking similarity in fundamentals to our own Constitution. In 1643 the first effort to form a union was successfully made. Four colonies then operating under separate charter governments, combined into the so-called 'Union of the New England Colonies.' In 1754 Benjamin Franklin proposed what was known as the Albany plan for a union of the thirteen American colonies, but it was rejected by England because it was too democratic, and by the colonies themselves on the ground that it was too aristocratic. In 1776 the idea of independent government was embodied by Thomas Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence. The year 1781 marked the Articles of Confederation but in 1787 the Constitution was drafted and adopted. From that day to this it has remained the fundamental law of the land, with amendments from time to time to meet conditions as they changed. Under its provisions the United States has grown from a nation of 3,000,000 souls to a world power with 110,000,000 people and double the wealth of any other country on earth.

That has been the history of American expansion and national development through a period of 300 years. It is a record the equal of which cannot be found elsewhere in the entire history of human progress. From the very beginning the men who directed the affairs of America were imbued with a fundamental inspiration that of divorce from the institutions of the old world, from the oppressions of which they had emigrated across the ocean. From the earliest times the tendency has been to make more secure our independence from the influence of Old World autocracies, and to cement the institutions that have made our national prosperity possible.

"But now, what a change! An American President, elected to perpetuate the very principles that have been our guide from the beginning, advocates the abandonment of the objects for which we have striven for 300 years, and the immediate return to the very conditions the colonists sought to escape. He would have us subjugate the American Republic to the dictatorship of a world council, composed of six empires and kingdoms and three republics, in which the United States would have one vote and foreign nations eight. Is that the manner in which Americans wish to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of 'popular government in the New World?'"

Arrangements are being completed by the general committee for the 46th annual reunion of the Ringgold Battalion, 22nd P. V. C., to be held at Bentleyville camp ground on Tuesday August 26th.

MAZOLA

The Perfect oil for cooking and salads

THE most discriminating epicure cannot say whether it is Mazola or imported olive oil in mayonnaise or French dressing served him. Italians who know real olive oil are enthusiastic about Mazola.

Your grocer sells Mazola at about one-half the price of the best olive oil.

Make This Delicious Mayonnaise Dressing Today

2 Eggs, Yolks only 1 pint of Mazola 1 teaspoon of Mustard
1 dash of Pepper 1 teaspoon of Salt 4 tablespoons of Vinegar

HAVE all ingredients and mixing utensils cold. Mix dry ingredients. Add egg yolks and when well mixed, add 1/2 teaspoon of vinegar. Add Mazola drop by drop until the mixture begins to thicken, beating slowly. As soon as the mixture thickens, add the remainder of the vinegar a little at a time. Now beat in the remainder of the Mazola gradually until all is used. The mayonnaise should be thick enough to hold its shape. Put in a glass jar and cover close. Place in the ice box to be used when needed. It will keep for weeks. Do not stir it when you open it; take out as much as you need with a tablespoon, and close the jar.

A Map Puzzle.

A few years ago two brothers who lived in a city of twenty thousand inhabitants made a map puzzle from a colored map of the city glued to a thin piece of board. By playing the game of putting the irregular little pieces together relates the Youth's Companion, they soon learned the names of the different streets and avenues, parks, public buildings, factories, and churches as they appeared on the map, and before long they could point to any one of the places and name it. Recently the brothers have formed a partnership in the business of delivering parcels, hand-bills and messages. They are famous for quick service; they can go anywhere and swiftly to any place in the city. Their map game has proved to be of practical value. Other boys who may have no intention of starting a delivery service will find the game interesting, and will also discover its practical value; for a thorough knowledge of the region round you, whether it be country, town or thickly settled city, always brings some advantage to its possessor.

Mystical Numbers.

Poor pus is as notoriously hard to kill as a weasel, which no doubt gave rise to the popular attribution of nine lives to her. Shakespeare knew of the saying, as witness this dialogue from Romeo and Juliet: "What wouldst thou have with me?" "Good king of cats, nothing but one of your nine lives." Nine was an old mystical number—five and three were the others—three represents a perfect unity; twice three is the perfect dual; thrice three is the perfect plural," says Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable.

Friendships of Youth.

Cultivate, kindly reader, those friendships of your youth; it is only in that generous time that they are found. How different the intimacies of after days are, and how much weaker the grasp of your own hand after it has been shaken in 20 years' commerce with the world and has squeezed and dropped a thousand equally careless palms. As you can seldom fashion your tongue to speak a new language after twenty, the heart refuses to receive friendships pretty soon; it gets too hard to yield to the impressions.—Thackeray.

Early Traffic in Humanity.

The traffic in men came probably from Chaldea into Egypt, Arabia, and all over the East. In Greece, in the time of Homer, 962-915 B. C., all prisoners of war were treated as slaves. Alexander, when he razed Thebes, sold the whole people for slaves, 335 B. C. Christian slaves captured by the Turks were trained as infantry in the Turkish army, 1329.

Prof. T. L. Pollock received a telephone message this morning announcing the death of his wife's mother, Mrs. Arthur Hawthorne, at her home in California, Pa., after an illness of about one month. Prof. Pollock left for California on the 12:40 train.

W. T. Hardester, the decorator, is at work decorating the buildings in town which have arranged to make displays for the soldiers' homecoming celebration. The work will be pushed with vigor until it is completed, which will be sometime before next Wednesday evening.

Making Good.

There are no talismans against failure; there are no luck stones that assure success. After all, when we get close to those whom we term famous or successful or talented we find them very simple folk, much like ourselves, and we are apt to marvel at their achievements, and, finding them so much like ourselves, we put their success down to some hidden forces that we do not understand or some unusual opportunities which have been given them.

Von Moltke's Garrulity.

Field Marshal von Moltke was a man of few words. It is said that a man who knew him well once made a wager that in proposing a toast to the Kaiser the old soldier would not use more than eight or nine words. On this occasion, however, it happened that he added to his usual phrase the words, "Meine Herren" - Gentlemen. The disconsolate loser remarked: "Von Moltke's aging. He's getting garrulous!"

The Dyspeptic Ostrich.

Long ago the phenomenal power of the ostrich was immortalized in the idiom of all the world's great languages. To have the "stomach of an ostrich" is the synonym for incomparable digestive power. As a matter of fact, however, the ostrich, if not a confirmed dyspeptic, has a most delicate digestion, and the successful feeding of ostriches in captivity requires constant care.

He Stuck to It.

The judge was listening to testimony in a case and ventured to interject a remark. "Do you claim that this man hit you with malice aforethought?" he asked. The complainant eyed him suspiciously for a moment and then replied: "You can't mix me up as easy as that, judge. I said he hit me with a flivver, and I stick to it." -The Argonaut.

Tea Popular British Beverage.

Tea is the most popular of British beverages, and in spite of William Cobbett's lament that "tea shops" were being substituted for wholesome small beer to the detriment of the populace in his day, "the cup that cheers" is the staple drink of all classes. It cannot be said that there has been any marked deterioration of English people through constant indulgence in tea.

Albatross Wonderful Flyer.

The albatross spends its life, with the exception of a few weeks given each year to nesting, entirely at sea, and is on the wing practically all the time. Furthermore, it does not progress by flapping its wings, as most birds do, but seems to soar at will, rarely, if ever, giving a stroke of the wing. Seemingly to need no impetus. At nesting time, which is early in the year, the albatross repairs to an isolated island, such as one of the Crozet islands, in the southern Indian ocean, or Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic ocean.

Right Idea About Business.

The old idea that business is getting the better of your neighbor is not only "bad business," but nonsense. Business is not getting the better of but doing the best for your neighbor - and yourself. If business is not mutually profitable, it is mutually destructive. My neighbor's prosperity helps mine and mine his. When that old pernicious notion is finally exploded the millennium of business will be at hand, the era of universal peace between capital and labor. -Lord Leverhulme.

Famous Castle of Durnstein.

The ragged towers of the castle of Durnstein, in which Richard of England was imprisoned, still rise by the Danube, and there is a Napoleonic legend that, as the French emperor rode by in his Vagram campaign, he pointed to them with horror as a reminder of a barbarous incident. Seemingly his reverry was untroubled by any prevision of the far harder fate in store for him.

Modern Crusades.

Between the island of Madagascar and the coast of India there are sixteen thousand islands, only six hundred of which are inhabited. In most of these islands a man can live and support his family in luxury without working more than 25 days in the year, or at all, as nature provides the food, and no clothes are required.

First Mahogany Wood.

It is said that mahogany was first known to Europeans through the fact that Sir Walter Raleigh, when at Trinidad in 1595, used planks of it to repair one of his vessels. The samples thus carried to England were much admired, but for over 100 years the wood was put to no really practical use.

Parents and Nurses Blamed.

It is not so much the sub-conscious memory of a fall or of a fright in early childhood that produces a lifelong dread as it is "the unwise attitude of parents and nurses in focusing the child's attention upon the fear, in sapping his confidence by showing their own apprehensions and communicating them to the suggestible child," writes Dr. H. Charles Cameron of London to the Lancet. "The child of himself is not afraid to fall," he continues. "It is the parents who make him afraid by treating the fall as a disaster. The child of himself is not afraid of being left alone. It is the parents who undermine his confidence by keeping him always under observation from a nameless dread of what may happen to him."

Parasitism.

There is an aspect of spider-and-fly relations which fabulists and naturalists alike have overlooked. A correspondent, who has brought the microscope to bear on many houseflies, finds that the parasite upon that hateful insect is often an immature spider. Too weak yet to spin its web, it makes the fly its winged palfrey, and courses from place to place at the will of its captive, either until Pegasus perishes naturally, or, presumably, until the rider is able to make a meal of his charger. This, if confirmed, seems to carry us a step farther in the study of parasitism and commensalism. -London Chronicle.

Founder of English Fiction.

Daniel Defoe has been called the real founder of English fiction, because he wrote the first noteworthy tale drawn from the imagination, but it was Samuel Richardson who first dealt with romance and heart throbs in the private lives of English families. He was born in 1689 and was the author of "Pamela," "Clarissa Harlowe" and "Sir Charles Grandison," novels in which are commingled sickly sentiment and wearisome description. -Exchange.

The Strong and Weak.

The brave and bold persist even against fortune; the timid and cowardly rush to despair through fear alone. -Tacitus.

Care of the Canary.

Don't forget to give the canary a fresh bit of green every now and then; also that too much hemp seed makes him fat.
